2 The Dgl of Edn, who was asked to Submit a Report on the Secondary above suggestions in the office No 12122/Ed(347-04)-1 dt 30/4/05 states as follo

1) Separation of English Schools from Vernacular ones would mean the doubling of expenditure on Taluk School education, and maintaining 2 Schools side by side in place of on both teaching the same 4 out of 5 Subjects and Causing unnecessary waste of energy and money.

2) In High Schools, where the Lower Secondary classes also exist, the Head master supervises these classes also. Enclosures

With reference to Secretary's Docket No 12122 Ed (347-04)-1 dated 30th June 1905 calling for report on subject No 134 of the Representative Assembly Proceedings of 1904, has the honour to state that the separation suggested in (a) would mean doubling the expenditure on Taluk School education and maintaining two schools side by side in place of one, both schools teaching the same four out of five subjects and causing unnecessary waste of energy and money.

(b) In most High Schools where classes below the III Form exist, the Head Master of the High School supervises the work of the Lower Secondary department also. In some District Headquarters where the classes below the III Form are formed into a separate Anglo-Vernacular School on account of the large attendance, the separation is highly beneficial and the Head-Master of the Anglo-Vernacular School looks after the Lower classes better than the Head Master of the High School can.

(c) A text-book in English for the Lower Secondary Examination would encourage cramming and cause great deterioration of the standard of English at the Lower Secondary Examination.
